

The Center for Intelligence and Security Research (CISR) is a ground-breaking university think tank conducting research that is specifically relevant to the missions of the U.S. intelligence, law enforcement, and defense communities.

CISR relies on the expertise of the faculty at the National Security Studies Institute – An Intelligence Community Center for Academic Excellence in a host of areas to produce tailored and timely reports for multiple government partners.

Areas of expertise

- Border Security
- Counterintelligence & Security
- Counterproliferation
- Counterterrorism
- Homeland Security
- Insurgent Movements
- Intelligence & Policy Analysis
- Law Enforcement & Intelligence Interviewing
- Modern Warfare
- National Security Law
- National Security Strategy & Policy
- Regional Security: Africa, North, Central & South America, Middle East & Europe
- Transnational Organized Crime

Our multi-disciplinary team

Stephen Coulthart, Ph.D. is a public policy analyst specializing in international security issues, with a focus on intelligence analysis methodologies and counterterrorism. He has conducted research on projects sponsored by government (CIA, ONR, USAID) and non-profit agencies (Amnesty International, Lawrence and Rebecca Stern Foundation).

Misty Duke, Ph.D. is a legal psychologist with research expertise in juror decision-making and the development of rapport in investigative interviews and interrogations. She has conducted research for the High Value Interrogation Group.

Sara McGuire, Ph.D., LL.M. holds a Ph.D. in Political Science (IR) and an LL.M. in International Law. Her research focuses on issues pertaining to homeland security and national security law.

Chris Linebarger, Ph.D. is a political scientist who researches the transnational dimensions of insurgency, terrorism, and political violence. He worked for five years on a Department of Defense Minerva Initiative project that cataloged social conflict in Africa and Central America.

Gabriella Sanchez, Ph.D. is an anthropologist who researches transnational crime, and human and drug mobility across borders. She has consulted for federal and state agencies (including DOS, DEA, DHS, DND and DOD) and global NGOs.

Larry Valero, Ph.D. is a historian specializing on U.S. Intelligence and National Security, Strategy and Modern Warfare. He was previously Scholar in Residence at the National Security Agency, Ft. Meade, Maryland and was on the faculty of the Department of International Security and Military Studies, U.S. Air Command and Staff College, Maxwell AFB, Alabama.

Damien Van Puyvelde, Ph.D. is a political scientist who researches issues of inter-organizational coordination in the security sector. He has experience conducting research at the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Contact us:

Center for Intelligence and Security Research
The University of Texas at El Paso
Telephone: (915) 747-6828
Email: cisr@utep.edu